Special program addresses meaning of life through conversation

Tuesday, August 1, 2017

Averi Coleman, Vicki Mitchell, Marie Reeder and Hannah Hatfield pose together as participants of Sages and Seekers. The special program, initiated this summer at Marshall Public Library and organized by Nora Windmeyer, was created to meet the needs of both young adults and elders to find meaning in their lives through conversation and inquiry. The group met weekly for eight weeks, with each age group expressing their unique perspective. The goal of the program was to develop empathy and diminishing ageism through the power of conversation. Anyone interested in hosting the program may contact Nora Windmeyer at 660-493-2730.
